

Donor Report

Chatham University

July 1, 2021-June 30, 2022

From the President

Dear Chatham Alumni and Friends,

I'm pleased to share this Donor Report recognizing those individuals and organizations who generously supported Chatham University with a gift last fiscal year, between July 1, 2021, and June 30, 2022.

Chatham's enrollment continues to flourish, with nearly 1,250 undergraduate students and roughly 1,000 graduate students. In a world where higher education struggled to weather the COVID-19 pandemic, Chatham is one of only three universities in Western Pennsylvania to see enrollment rise in the last five years, more than doubling the number of undergraduates since 2015 when we became an all-gender institution. As the size of our student body has risen, so too have GPAs and academic profiles. Chatham is gaining acknowledgement at the national level as one of the smallest institutions to be ranked among the U.S.'s Top 200 national universities. We're particularly proud of the fact that Chatham is now ranked one of the Top 10 national universities for helping low-income students achieve upward social mobility and we are ranked #1 for social mobility among all national universities in Pennsylvania, according to the U.S. News & World Report. This is a true testament to our faculty, staff, student body and the alumni and donors who generously support scholarships.

As we look to the future of Chatham University, we have recently completed a strategic plan that builds on our success and continues to propel us forward. The centerpiece of this new plan leverages our strengths to meet what many students want today when selecting a college—a true liberal arts experience with a beautiful campus, small class sizes, and a chance to work with employers and community partners in one of America's great college cities. However, we won't be able to continue our upward trajectory on our own. As we have for over 150 years, Chatham will depend on our generous supporters to serve as the true cornerstone of any new growth.

Serving as Chatham University's 19th President has been one of the greatest honors of my life and career. I will be stepping down at the end of this academic year to pursue a couple of new initiatives, but Sue and I will remain committed supporters of this wonderful institution and hope to maintain the many friendships we've made over the last seven years. Thank you for being a cornerstone for our campus community, and, most importantly, for the students who have greatly benefitted from your financial support.

May the year ahead be a safe, healthy, and happy one for each of you!

With gratitude,

David Finegold

Distinguished Alumna Awardee Vivian Lowery Derryck '67 Creates Opportunities for Chatham Students

When Vivian Lowery Derryck approached the podium in Mellon Board Room this past October to receive the prestigious Distinguished Alumni Award, she was greeted with a standing ovation. In her remarks, Vivian shared with the audience her lifelong commitment to the advancement of girls' education, with special emphasis on Black girls and young women. This commitment is rooted in her family's legacy. Her great-grandmother "Mama Snow" sent her daughter Rosa, Vivian's grandmother, to Spelman College in Atlanta, America's oldest private HBCU liberal arts college for women. In 1938, when Vivian's mother graduated from Schaufler College of Social Work in Cleveland, only 2/10ths of 1% of college graduates were Black women. Upholding the legacy, Vivian graduated from Chatham College in 1967, a moment of transformation for our country:

"The 1960s was a golden period for Chatham. When we graduated, our country was in the throes of the Civil Rights Movement and the Vietnam War. Civil rights leader John Lewis and antiwar activist Reverend William Sloane Coffin had visited Chatham and urged us to be engaged in shaping a more equitable and just nation. Their call to action resonated with our class and we had developed a really special bond by the time we graduated in 1967."

Reflecting on the world that young Black women are graduating into today, she says:

"There are multiple stresses weighing on Black women today. George Floyd's murder was an awakening for the country as the aftermath exposed the perils of entrenched structural inequities, multiple racial disparities including health, income and education, plus the legacy of structural racism and slavery. All these stresses are impacting Black women every day, making it difficult to navigate the worlds of work and social networks. I hope that I can reduce some of that stress through a scholarship."

In that spirit of helping future generations of students move forward, Vivian has endowed a new scholarship at Chatham: The Vivian Lowery Derryck '67 Endowed Scholarship:

"Beginning with my great grandmother, every generation has prioritized a college education for the women in the family. I want to build on that tradition and offer an opportunity for a Chatham education to another young Black woman. I view what I'm doing now as paying forward my family legacy."

Vivian's career and philanthropy have been defined by building connections across race, class, and religion here in the U.S. and overseas. Her abiding love for and dedication to Africa was shaped as an undergraduate at Chatham when she had an opportunity to spend a summer in Cote d'Ivoire through the Vira I. Heinz Scholarship in a program called Operation Crossroads Africa. Her experiences in the program solidified her commitment to affecting change for women and girls through educational opportunities.

Vivian's collective experiences as a student at Chatham honed her interest in global affairs and helped shape her future career path. After pursuing graduate studies at Columbia University, Vivian moved to Liberia and taught at the University of Liberia where she reconnected with Professor J. Dale Chastain, her former Chatham professor and tutorial advisor:

"It was so wonderful to see Mr. Chastain a few years after graduating. We had dinner together and it was a special moment."

Vivian would go on to hold numerous positions in both government and the non-profit private sectors, including serving as Deputy Assistant Secretary for Equal Employment Opportunity and Civil Rights at the State Department, Executive Vice President of the National Council of Negro Women, Vice President of the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs, Senior Advisor of the Africa Leadership Forum, President of the African-American Institute and Founder and President Emerita of The Bridges Institute. In her professional roles she had the opportunity to work directly with former President Jimmy Carter on Haiti and with Sarah Weddington of Roe v. Wade on a major global UN conference for women. She met with Nelson Mandela 12 days after his release from Robbin Island Prison, beginning a long and personally fulfilling friendship. In 2021, Vivian was named a Knight of the National Order of Mali by the Malian government for her decades-long work, the highest honor awarded to a foreign national.

Thinking back on her life and career, Vivian says "so much of my life was shaped by Chatham." Vivian chose Chatham because it was a women's college, only three hours from her childhood home in Cleveland ("just a bus ride away") and, like so many others, for the beauty of its campus. In addition to her studies with Professor Chastain she remembers meeting visiting luminaries like future U.S. Senator Daniel Patrick Moynahan and actress Helen Hayes.

But it was then-student John Lewis who made the most indelible impression on young Vivian:

"John Lewis was with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and came to campus as a Freedom Rider. He was a student like we were, and that was impactful. That really changed my life."

Today Vivian continues the work that she began as a student at Chatham. The Bridges Institute, the nonprofit she founded to help strengthen African governance and democracy, launched its first U.S. project in 2020, Concerned Citizens Defending Democracy (CCDD), in response to the murder of George Floyd and the Black Lives Matter movement. CCDD is a diverse non-partisan group of 40 senior activists using their time, talent and experience to support free and fair elections and racial healing. Three of her '67 classmates are actively involved in CCDD.

As Vivian reflects on her journey, she concludes:

"Whenever I reflect on seminal issues, I think of my ancestors... When I meet them they're going to ask how did I use the freedom they worked so hard to achieve. I'll tell them that I worked to defend our democracy against unprecedented challenges; that I championed women's equity; that I increased girls' educational opportunities; that I promoted civic virtue in our country; that I supported liberal arts education, innovation and sustainability; and that I tried to be a Chatham graduate worthy of the honor of being named a Distinguished Alumna."

Meaghan Clohessy '14: Once a Student Phonathon Caller, Now an Alumni Association Board Member

How does a Midwest girl from Milwaukee, WI (and a Brewers baseball fan) end up attending a university in Pittsburgh, PA? The decision to attend Chatham University was an easy one for Meaghan Clohessy '14—despite the Pirates baseball. After visiting the Shadyside Campus for the first time, she immediately felt a connection to the City of Pittsburgh because the humble, working-class city felt similar to her Midwestern hometown. It wasn't just the city of Pittsburgh that appealed to her.

As a well-traveled young woman, she was also enthusiastic about Chatham's study abroad program. Meaghan shares, "I was drawn by the study abroad program as an ardent traveler. I was thrilled with the idea that I could travel overseas as part of my studies. The financial support Chatham offered me made the requirement easier to complete."

Meaghan was an exemplary student and even worked on campus as a Phonathon Student Caller in the Office of University Advancement. She excelled at calling alumni to ask for support for her fellow classmates and she's grateful for the experience. "It was fascinating getting to hear the stories of alumni and the reasons they fell in love with Chatham. The job also cultivated a relationship with the Alumni Relations department, which has been nothing but supportive of my post-Chatham endeavors. The job taught me the different ways I could support the Chatham community, not to mention the customer service skills I developed. I cite my work with Phonathon as the reason for landing my first job after college, which involved calling dentists to persuade them to network with state-managed care plans."

After graduating from Chatham University with a BFA in Creative Writing and American History, Meaghan went on to continue her education at The London School of Economics in England, where she earned an MSc in European Studies (Research). Meaghan has held various professional roles in fundraising, writing, and administration. She is currently a rising star at the RAND Corporation, where she serves as a security analyst and has received the Bronze Medal Award for her work in elevating security awareness through enhanced workplace communications.

Meaghan acknowledges her time at Chatham as playing a key role in her current success. "Chatham instilled within me a sense of intellectual curiosity, which allowed me to passionately pursue a myriad of different subjects during my studies. This proved helpful when entering the job market because it allowed me to learn on my feet. Additionally, being required to complete a Tutorial prepared me for the rigorous research and perseverance needed to complete a graduate dissertation. My Chatham education prepared me to tackle any project with confidence and enthusiasm, while also making myself available to support fellow peers and colleagues."

The life lessons Chatham taught Meaghan are always present in her leadership as she continues to advance in her career. Currently, Meaghan is an active member of the Chatham community, serving as an Alumni Association Board member and Young Alumni Council member. As a former Chatham fundraiser and a student who benefitted from the gift of scholarship, she understands the value of giving back, noting, "Supporting Chatham ensures that future students have access to the same experiences alumni had when they were attending. A strong alumni community can go far in supporting key areas, such as scholarships, international programs, as well as providing students with a built-in network when they graduate. Engaged alumni are essential in maintaining Chatham's commitment to our institutional values."

April 4, 1944-June 23, 2022

Beloved Chatham professor and alumna, Dr. Mary Schlitt Kostalos passed away unexpectedly this past summer, leaving an indelible mark on the Chatham community she was a part of for so many decades.

Dr. Kostalos earned her BS in Biology at Chatham College in 1967 and eventually returned to Chatham as a faculty member, teaching Chatham students for the next 35 years. A Professor Emerita of Biology, Mary held several positions as a faculty member until her retirement in 2009.

Mary's impactful legacy on Chatham's science department and our students continues to live on through her generous spirit. In 2001, she endowed The Mary S. and John Kostalos Jr. Memorial Fund. The fund supports programs and activities that enhance the mission of Rachel Carson and sustainability at Chatham University. Later, in 2014, Mary created The Mary S. and John Kostalos Jr. Fund to benefit Chatham University's science department and faculty.

Mary dedicated most of her life to Chatham and the students who were fortunate enough to study under her. Her legacy will continue to support Chatham faculty for generations, ensuring academic excellence and access to new and essential equipment that will impact students for years to come.

"Mary Kostalos founded the Rachel Carson Institute at Chatham to honor alumna Rachel Carson by continuing her work educating people about the beauties and workings of the natural world, while drawing attention to the dangers it faces from human interference. The Institute worked with environmental educators around the region, supporting them with materials, guest lectures, national conferences and more.

Working with Mary was a great experience. Her commitment to Chatham was deep and life-long, and her love for her students and what she did here was so obvious. As a young woman coming into the Institute, I considered her a mentor."

—Dr. Mary Whitney '91, director of university sustainability

"As a new faculty candidate considering my offer from Chatham, the existence of the Kostalos Funds made all the difference in my decision. The availability of these funds to support research in combination with teaching small classes made Chatham stand out for me. Thanks to her generous support, I've been able to purchase some high-end research equipment that is unavailable to many schools of Chatham's size and will allow me and our students to contribute to cutting-edge molecular studies in the fields of microbiology and virology. We were also able to support training for student supplemental instructors in support of our new course-based authentic research programs—now available to all Chatham first-year biology students."

—Dr. Welkin Pope, assistant professor of microbiology

"To say that Dr. Kostalos was admired was an understatement. She was someone in the department that any of us could go to for advice, a listening ear, a pep talk, or stalwart support. She dedicated most of her life to Chatham and the students she brought closer to understanding the natural world.

This past year, the Kostalos Fund provided the science department with vital funding that enabled us to participate in the SEA-PHAGES program (seaphages.org). This gives our first-year biology lab students the opportunity to participate and contribute to an authentic national research project, while developing lab and critical thinking skills."

—Colleen Barrett, senior biology lecturer and lab supervisor

STUDENT PROFILE

Madison Stokes '26

Madison Stokes '26 is a Presidential Scholar. The Presidential Scholarship is Chatham's most prestigious scholarship that covers tuition for up to three incoming, first-year students for each academic year of study at Chatham University.

First-year Madison Stokes from Harrisburg, PA is one of Chatham's exceptional students pursuing a science degree. Her major is neuroscience—one of Chatham's newest programs. The neuroscience major prepares students for careers and degree programs in neuroscience, neuropsychology, genetic counseling, experimental psychology, neuropharmacology, medicine, physician assistant studies, and pharmacy.

Why did you choose to attend Chatham University?

I chose Chatham University for many reasons. During my college search, I was looking for a school that provided a small campus, with a neuroscience major, supportive professors and administration, and the ability to quickly get involved on and off campus. Chatham University checked all of those boxes for me. On top of this, after I was awarded the Presidential Scholarship, for which I am extremely grateful. It made the decision I had to make evidently clear.

What are you involved in outside of the classroom?

I am involved in many clubs and organizations outside of the classroom. Currently, I am the event coordinator for the Black Student Union. My main goal is to create safe spaces, whether that is through events or roundtables for black students on campus. I also strive to bridge the gap between the other BIPOC organizations on campus and the student body as a whole. I am one of two 2026 Class Representatives and I work with the Chatham Student Government (CSG) to create action steps to solve problems and bring new ideas to reality. I am also a member of the Chatham Christian Fellowship and Community Service Club.

Off-campus, I am involved in voting access and advocacy for the Black population. Black Political Empowerment Project (B-PeP) is a way for me to volunteer, connect with other black leaders in the Pittsburgh area, and continue to improve my networking skills. I also volunteer with Chatham's Pennsylvania Center for Women and Politics to encourage students and community members to register to vote.

Why is scholarship support important to you?

Scholarship support is important to me because it lifts the financial burden off me and my parents' shoulders. I no longer have to worry about how much money I have to spend on paying off loans or buying school supplies like textbooks. This support motivates me to always improve in my classes and give back through service to the Chatham community as a whole. I would like to say thank you to all Chatham donors. I am enjoying my time here at Chatham University. My science professors are outstanding, my advisor Dr. Ethan Block is very helpful, and I am able to get involved in many different clubs and organizations on campus. I am so glad that I chose Chatham University!

SPECIAL SECTION: 2021-2022 DONORS

We are grateful for our alumni and friends whose generosity helps Chatham's innovative spirit thrive and brings our long-term vision for the University closer to reality. Thanks to you, Chatham students receive an unrivaled education that fuses modern, professional skills with traditional, liberal arts knowledge. Their success, both at the University and beyond, would not be possible without your contributions. The opportunities that donors create ensures that Chatham's reputation for excellence will live on well into the future.

On the following pages, we recognize donors who made gifts between July 1, 2021 and June 30, 2022. Together, these donors committed more than $13 million to Chatham.
